

Clarity of the Problem

Instructions:

In the journal areas below, you can type up what you have hand written on the paper you printed out, if you indeed used the print out. This is helpful as it will store your journal notes here for future reference.

Or, if you don't want to bother to keep the notes you took on paper, or if any of the sections below simply do not apply to you and you didn't put any notes, simply put "NA" in the fields below and click "Continue" at the bottom to move forward.

Like Keith said... set aside 40 minutes to do this "thinking time."

1. If you sold your business and the buyer forgot to include a Covenant Not to Compete and a Non-Solicitation Agreement on hiring former employees and you decided to restart your business:

⌵

1-a. What would you do to compete with your old business?

⌵

1-b. Who would you rehire from your old business?

⌵

2. How many of your current problems would disappear if 100% of your team was an “A” Player? Or said another way: Make a list of the problems you would still have if 100% of your team was an “A” Player.

⌵

3. What would your message/promise need to be so that you could double the number of leads and conversions with your existing marketing/sales budget?

⌵

4. If I could _____ really, really well, I could close the gap or solve this problem?

⌵

5. If I had _____, I could close the gap or solve this problem.

⌵

6. Where have we tolerated mediocrity, lowered our standards or allowed inconsistent execution to become an acceptable performance criteria?

⌵

7. Competitively, why do customers buy from us? Why isn't this strength sufficient to cause more potential buyers to stop doing business with our competition and to start doing business with us?

⌵

8. What could I do to make this problem worse?

⌵

9. What can be done today to improve this situation?

⌵

10. If my Board of Directors fired me and hired a new management team, what decisions or answers would my replacement have?

⌵

CONTINUE