

In this exercise, you will evaluate the "fit" between your Value Map and your Customer Profile.

To do this exercise:

1. Retrieve the Customer Profile and Value Map you completed in the previous exercises.
2. Start by drawing a circle around one particular gain creator or pain reliever on your Value Map.
3. Now draw a circle around each job, pain, or gain in your Customer Profile that the circled gain creator or pain reliever addresses.
4. Repeat these steps until you have circled all gain creators and pain relievers with the jobs, pains, and gains that they address.

Normally you should still have some un-circled jobs, pains, and gains on your Customer Profile since no value proposition can address all of a customer's jobs, pains, and gains. Remember that the greatest value propositions address only a limited number of a customer's important jobs, pains, and gains, but do so extremely well.